

About the Program

The Passaic River is one of the most contaminated urban rivers in the nation. Contaminants and degraded habitat impact ecological and human health, dredged material management in the harbor and the economic viability of the region. All Stakeholders must work together to remediate and restore this valuable natural resource.

The Passaic River Institute at Montclair State University (MSU) and the Hudson Delaware Chapter of the Society of Environmental Toxicology and Chemistry (HDC/SETAC) invite you to participate in our 2nd Passaic River Symposium. This symposium will gauge what progress has been made in the Basin, what new efforts have been launched, and the daunting challenges we still face to achieve our vision of a clean and vibrant ecosystem. Governmental agencies will provide information on the Lower Passaic River Restoration Project, an innovative partnership to seek a watershed-based comprehensive solution to restore the river. Many other organizations are also conducting valuable research that will aid in determining the right solution. Please join us!

About the Sponsors

The Passaic River Institute (PRI) at MSU represents faculty, students and facilities dedicated to an interdisciplinary approach to examining the environmental issues confronting the watershed. The PRI mission is to seek solutions for these problems and to further environmental research and education. The PRI also seeks to nurture cooperative relationships with federal and state agencies, corporations and environmental advocacy groups.

SETAC is an international professional society of 4,000 environmental chemists, toxicologists and ecologists from academia, government, and private industry. The Hudson-Delaware Chapter of SETAC was founded in 1987 to help further the greater goals of SETAC in the greater NY-Philadelphia Metropolitan Area. SETAC promotes learned discourse and education on all aspects of environmental toxicology and chemistry.
